*There, on the table, was a tiny book.
She thought, "what would it hurt to take a look?"*

*She opened the cover and stepped inside;
The dreams in her mind seemed to come alive!*

*The sun danced away with the afternoon, while the stars
twirled up to tickle the moon.*

*With her thoughts carried off
by the visions that wooed her,
she began her journey into the Book of Pewter.*

*The objects she'd known were different than before,
and all she could think was,
"I want to see more!"*

Artist Leandra Drumm says her work is inspired by the everyday people and things that surround her. What a delightful and fanciful world she must live in!

Born and raised in Akron, Ohio, Leandra is the daughter of two well-known artists, Don and Lisa Drumm. Her father is a nationally celebrated sculptor working in metals and cement, and her mother works in fiber arts. Since 1970, the family has owned and operated Don Drumm Studios & Gallery in Akron, which represents over 500 top professional artists and has been honored as one of the country's Top Ten American Craft Galleries.

Early summers were spent immersed in the crafts world at North Carolina's famous Penland School of Crafts, where Leandra's parents taught classes. Leandra began selling her artwork at the age of ten, creating crafts at Akron's "Highland Fling" Festival. She continued her art education at the University of Akron through an early start program in high school. After earning a BFA in Graphic Design at Kent State University, Leandra interned with the graphic design firm F. Eugene Smith and Associates. Leandra and husband Tim Benninghoff now have their own business located in Akron, Ohio.

The whimsical figures and symbols decorating her etched glass and pewter collections illustrate her wonderful world of stars, whirligigs and sky-rockets. Along with a menagerie of odd-shaped animals and hyper-active men, women and children blessed with far-out faces and figures, Leandra creates a unique world best described as "fantasy in motion".

Her artwork combines storytelling with a marvelous sense of humor and functionality. Leandra is known for her crystal wedding bowls decorated with words and charming figures spinning tales from bottom to the top, as well as dinner plates and glassware. In pewter she creates fanciful switchplates, wall hangings, ornaments, and measuring spoons, guaranteed to bring smiles.

Leandra's work is sold in shops and galleries across the United States and Canada. Her collections have been featured in Bon Appetite Magazine and the Boston Globe Sunday Magazine. She and her work have also been celebrated in newspapers in Nashville, Chicago and Akron, and Northern Ohio Live Magazine named her one of the most interesting young people to watch for in 2000 and beyond. In 2003, she won first place in the international First Night poster contest for her design for Akron.

Fanciful Switches

Switchplates

Last night I heard a noise, and scurried out of bed, and there amongst the darkness was a fairy dressed in red.

She waved her magic wand as she danced across the room, spreading bits of fairy dust under the reflection of the moon.

Then she caught a glimpse of me, and smiling, spread her wings, and fluttered out the window as if pulled by tiny strings.

And when I turned the lights back on, I saw upon the wall, she'd left a little reminder of the magic in us all.

Spoons, Spreaders, Forks ...

The spoon came alive when she placed it in the bowl, it devoured up the salad and ate the tomatoes whole.

Then it turned and giggled as it licked around its lips, and said, "I love food that doesn't go straight to my hips!"

Magnetic Attraction

Magnets

They spotted each other across the way,
the paper blushed and started to sway.

Dancing together on the refrigerator door,
their magnetic attraction was too much to ignore.

After their dance the paper lay still,
so all could see her grocery store bill.

The magnet kissed her delicate sheet,
and thought how lucky they were to meet.

Ornamental Treasures

Ornaments & Package Ties

Miss Gray was a woman, who despite her name, was not very simple, and not very plain.

Her packages were tied with ornaments and bells, personalized with names, and soft scented smells.

When she was done with her packages and paper, she had an ornament for the tree in which to remember.

All the things happy and all the things good, there was something about life that Miss Gray understood.

A Place to Rest

Hooks

After entering the room and closing the door, the little red coat slumped to the floor.

The hook shook his head at her slobby demeanor, and said, "It'd be nice if only you were cleaner!"

The coat bounced to her tails and teasingly laughed, the hook was completely aghast!

"Catch me, catch me if you can," the little red coat whispered as she ran.

The hook leapt from the living room wall catching her sleeve as she ran down the hall.

Twisting and turning they ended in rest, the coat giving up after trying her best.

The Reflection

The sun shrank behind a paper cloud, afraid to be bold, afraid to be loud.

Releasing his sadness, teardrops of rain began to fall, and something wonderful came from something small.

A puddle, a pond, and soon a lake, it grew even larger before the sun could wake.

When at last the rain had stopped, smiling, the sun cleared the last drop.

The sun gazed downward lovingly, at his beautiful reflection upon the sea.

Magic for the Walls

Wall Hangings & Tree Toppers

It was the holidays, and Miss Periwinkle Titherpot, could not find something to hit the spot.

The house was plain, the walls were bare, something was needed at the top of the stair.

Something shiny, new and fun, but how could she choose just one?

She decorated with images of animals, people and places she'd never been, then sat and made up stories 'til the day came to an end.

When she was finished placing them on the wall, she set one on her Christmas tree to make it stand up tall.
